Mother Finds Baby Submerged in Lake

Child Saved

A 20-month-old girl toddled into Elk Lake after her swimming mother yesterday and nearly drowned. Her harried father had taken his eyes away from her "for only a couple of seconds."

Maureen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Osland, Telegraph Road, Saanich, was found lying in the water by Mrs. Osland.

Mr. Osland, who had also been watching their three other small children, applied artificial respiration until arrival of Saanich fire department inhalator squad.

Maureen was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital by the firemen. She is being held for observation.

"She must have been going after her mother in the water," Mr. Osland said. "I took my eyes from her for a couple of seconds and she disappeared."

"It is hard to keep track of four children at once," he said. He had high praise for the firemen.

Pound for Pound—the Best

Piano-pounding poppa (almost) was carried protesting from a Hamilton, Ont., supermarket stage on doctor's orders yesterday while his wife waited to have a baby. Donald (Tiny) Bird, 27, of Swift Current, Sask., played 72 hours, 52 minutes in an effort to beat his own 75-hour non-stop record and to lose 40 of his 240 pounds. Mrs. Bird, who expects baby today, said Tiny's legs gave out.

Explorers Due Out at Dawn

Eight Crawl to Safety From Cave Water Trap

1,000 Feet Below Ground

SAINT GAUDENS, France (AP)—Eight cave explorers, trapped 1,000 feet inside the earth by flooding underground streams, were reported crawling to safety early today.

They were expected to reach the surface by dawn.

Their base camp at the entrance of the Coume Ouarnede Grottoes kept in touch with the men through intermittent conversations over a field telephone line reaching far into the earth.

"NO GREAT DANGER"

Jean Nalin, one of three explorers caught by rain-swollen subterranean streams at the 1,500-foot level, said in one conversation that the group never considered itself in great danger, although their exit was cut off Thursday night.

With a sudden drop in the waters, the three found a new passage to the upper levels Friday and by afternoon joined five other explorers caught at the 1,150-foot level of a cave called Pierre.

BLOCKED BY WATERFALL

Further climbing was blocked by a cascade of water falling along the exit passage.

The waterfall stopped Friday night. Then the eight inched their way up to an underground camp at the 600-foot level.

Heavy rains Thursday are believed to have caused the flooding of the subterranean river in the caves, about 12 miles west of Saint Gaudens in the Haute Garonne department.

AT LOWER LEVEL

Nalin, Andre Nund and Pierre Weider, all from the Marcella area, were trapped at the lower level.

Higher up were speleologists (cave explorers) Pierre Gicquel, Gerard Propas, Jean Parent, Jacques Pernin and Joseph Deltell.

Deltell, from the 1,150-foot perch, made a perilous middle-of-the-night climb Thursday night down to warn the other three but was unable to reach them.

The eight descended into the cave Wednesday to study what happened to surface streams which disappeared in the limestone cliffs of the lower Pyrenees.

Quebec Flood Costs Million

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Duplessis said Friday Quebec government repairs to highways and bridges in the flood-swept Thetford Mines area will cost about $1,000,000. The premier made no announcement concerning possible aid to the flood victims.

'Weekend' Soldiers Do the Honors

Governor-General Vincent Massey inspects his Foot Guards—something the Queen won't do. Colorful "weekend" soldiers are furious because Regiment of Canadian Guards will act as guard of honor when the Queen opens Canadian Parliament Oct. 14.

'Not Fit for the Queen?'

Massey's Guards See Red

Militia Furious At Army Slight

OTTAWA (CP)—The militia in general and the Governor-General's Foot Guards in particular are up in arms over arrangements for Queen Elizabeth's visit to Ottawa in October.

Traditionally, the Foot Guards, in peacetime a reserve army unit, provide the guard of honor for the governor-general at the opening of Parliament. They have been doing this for 50 or 60 years.

But when the Queen opens Parliament Oct. 14, the guard of honor will be provided by the Regiment of Canadian Guards, a regular army unit.

"They don't think we're good enough," said a senior militia officer.

"For decades, in the snow and rain and sleet, we provide the guard of honor. When the plum comes along, we're tossed aside."

"It's a direct insult to his excellency, the governor-general. If we're good enough to look after the Queen's representative in Canada, we're good enough to look after the Queen."

The honorary lieutenant-colonel of the Governor-General's Foot Guards is Hon. Brooke Claxton, former defence minister and now an insurance company executive.

Mr. Claxton declined comment but it is understood that he and other senior militia officers have made official protests to Defence Minister Peakes and Lt.-Gen. Howard D. Graham, chief of the general staff, over the shunting aside of the Foot Guards.

"The boys give up their time and sometimes money to turn out in all sorts of weather and then they get this kind of treatment," said one aroused militia officer, almost red with fury. "There's going to be a real stink raised about this."

New honor for Dr. Brock Chisholm, Sook, came yesterday in Denmark where he was elected president of World Mental Health Federation. He's retired director of World Health Organization.

Hungary To Fight Report

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—An announcement convening the United Nations General Assembly on Sept. 10 to debate the Hungary report will be made Monday.

Hungary is sending Foreign Minister Imre Horvath to the UN to fight the report on how Russia crushed an anti-Communist uprising last fall.

Hungarian position is that the report interferes in domestic affairs.

Noon Nap Needed?

LONDON (Reuters)—Dr. M. Curwen plumped for the siesta habit in a letter to the British Medical Journal. He said: "Why do our social habits refuse to take account of bodily function in this respect—and why do we insist on trying to carry on work as usual at times when it was obviously intended by nature that we should go to sleep instead."

Swell Word, Say Profs

Reinvoke Revoke Evokes No Joke

INVOKE—Call on (God, etc.) in prayer or as witness; appeal to (person's authority, etc.); summon (spirits) by charms; ask earnestly for (remembrance, help, etc.)—Oxford Dictionary.

Don't look now but B.C. Centennial celebrations are going to feature historic scenes called on again in prayer, appealed to again; summoned again by charms or earnestly asked for again.

You don't believe it? Well, you'll just have to take two professors' word for it.

They say that great scenes will be reinvoked.

Peter Bruton, Colonist reporter, thought the great scenes were going to be re-enacted, and when he saw one of 500,000, lavish invitations going out announcing that the scenes were to be reinvoked it looked as if someone had boobed.

He wrote a story for yesterday's Colonist pointing out that the word wasn't in the dictionary.

Now the centennial committee wants the Colonist "to reinvocate" (call on again in prayer?) its story.

They quote Dr. Malcolm McGregor, chairman of the UBC classics (Latin and Greek) department, saying there "definitely is justification for the use of the word 'reinvoked.'"

"Not every example is given in the dictionary," the Classics scholar said. But the committee did not have any quote to explain what the word meant.

Professor Wilfred Kesterton, Ottawa University, was also quoted as saying the Colonist was "quite in error."

He said that "to use prefixes in this manner is part of the flexibility of the English language."

Light Vote Forecast

Saanich Goes to Polls Today

A light vote is expected today in the Saanich municipal hall referendum.

Municipal clerk Gordon Hayward said this was because "no personalities are involved and it is in the summertime."

Voters, between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. at 13 stations, will mark

"yes" or "no" on ballots that of the work is $225,000 and it is proposed to provide the balance of $130,000 from revenue surplus funds.

"By-law No. 1323, a by-law authorizing the sum of $365,000 of the money received from the sale of tax sale lands to be applied to the cost of altering, renovating and adding to the present municipal hall at Royal Oak. The estimated total cost of the work is $225,000 and it is proposed to provide the balance of $130,000 from revenue surplus funds.

"Shall by-law No. 1323, being the 'Disposition of monies received from the sale of tax sale lands, by-law, 1957,' be confirmed?"

Polling places are: Cedar Hill School, Lansdowne Junior High School, Tolmie School, Cloverdale School, Gordon Head Community Hall, Cadboro Bay Scout Hall, Marigold Scout Hall, Mount View High, Royal Oak High, McMorran's Pavilion, Prospect Lake School, St. Martin's-in-the-Field Hall and Tillamook School.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

CIVIL servants are often accused of speaking and writing in a language that nobody understands. Some of them, in fact, speak and write clearly. Others use long foggy words and ponderous phrases that are meant to hide, rather than convey, facts and opinions.

However, civil servants are not the only offenders. Just as huffing as civil service, gobbledegook is the "executive" jargon spoken and written by captains of industry.

A horrible example of executive was handed me last night by a desk man, who held the piece of copy gingerly, as though it were smeared with some sticky and evil-smelling stuff.

It was a Windsor, Ontario, story, which I reproduce in full.

"The Chrysler Corporation of Canada announced today that it has suspended production of passenger cars and trucks in its Windsor plants 'due to a revision in manufacturing schedules and rearrangements of plant facilities.'

"Production had restarted at the beginning of this week after two weeks of annual vacations.

"Layoffs in the department concerned began Wednesday, although those concerned with the rearrangements will continue to operate. The company said it hoped to resume production in the passenger car and engine plant 'as soon as possible in September.'

What facts are hidden in this little jumble of words?

Chrysler Corporation of Canada has quit making cars and trucks at Windsor until September, or later. Isn't that it? Then why not say so? But the Chrysler management in Windsor had reason for throwing up that verbal smoke-screen.

Easier on Nerves

"Suspended production of cars and trucks," they said. What a limp, bloodless and comfortable phrase that is. The executive mind shuns harsh words like "shut down," because they are likely to cause alarm. "Suspended production" is easier on the nerves.

Executives is a hardy jargon. Many people don't understand it, and many others are too lazy to attempt translation. The words make a vague, stately music in their heads. The people read it, but they don't absorb what it means. Therefore they don't get scared. They don't rush out and sell their Chrysler stock.

When the Chrysler people say they have "suspended production of cars and trucks," they leave the impression that things are going to be all right because the other part of the factory is still running full blast.

They don't say so, but they imply that trolley buses, outboard motors and power toothbrushes are still rolling off the assembly line. The truth probably is that the plant makes only cars and trucks, but nothing else.

Those sonorous phrases are small consolation to the men who are laid off. Long words won't pay any grocery bills. However, they seem to have a soothing effect on the public.

A statement in executives is milder, much milder, than the same thing in plain English. But why should a news reporter parrot that kind of talk, without trying to tell the public what it means?

Little Harm Done: Flat Week, Anyway

HEANOR, England (AP)—The weekly Heanor Observer was unable to go to press yesterday because its type-setting machine was lying around the shop in some 500 pieces.

Edward Rollinson, who is sole owner, editor, reporter and advertising manager, and his compositor took the machine apart to clean it. But they couldn't reassemble it.

Rollinson now has turned the job over to a qualified mechanic.

He assured inquiring subscribers, "You really didn't miss much, anyway. It has been a pretty flat week for news."

Plane was found, badly damaged, at the Ralph W. Snyder wheat farm at Washtucna, Wash., about 100 miles southwest of Spokane.

Rudy Kwikram, 1032 Oilphant, owner of the aircraft, left Victoria for Washtucna Thursday by car with a friend, Bob White, who is visiting Victoria from California, and Nils Christensen, Victoria Flying Club engineer.

Last night Mr. Kwikram told his wife by telephone that the fuselage was bent, one wing badly damaged and the propeller was broken. There was also some damage to the undercarriage.

Thomas Hawkins

He Helped Brighten Victoria

Thomas William C. Hawkins, 81, former Victoria alderman and one of the men responsible for the hanging flower baskets here that have become world-famous, died suddenly Thursday.

Mr. Hawkins, who came here in 1898 from his native Cornwall, England, began his working career driving a streetcar. He later became a partner in an electrical contracting firm, Stephenson and Hawkins. When his partner, Charles Stephenson, died, he formed the firm of Hawkins and Hayward Electric, which he operated until his retirement.

Mr. Hawkins was alderman in 1939 and 1940, and from 1942 until 1945.

It was in 1937 that he worked closely with Norman "Cap" Foster, then assistant secretary of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, helped install the colored street lighting and hanging flower baskets.

Mr. Hawkins was a life member of the Victoria Columbia Lodge No. 1, AF and AM and the Scottish Rite, and a member of the Laurier Club.

He is survived by his widow, Winifred, at home, 2868 Heath Drive; a brother, Fred, and a sister, Mrs. Fred Prior, both in Victoria, and nieces and nephews.

Canon A. E. Greenhalgh will officiate at funeral services Monday, at 3 p.m. from Hayward's funeral home. Cremation will follow.

A group of handicapped persons will be the next campers, starting Aug. 26.

The frigate HMCS Jonquiere will practise surface firing in Juan de Fuca Strait off Esquimalt between 9 and 11 a.m. Monday.

Expansion of office facilities for trade unions will be considered at a meeting of Victoria Building Co-operative Union, the organization which owns and manages labor headquarters, 613-615 Pandora, at 10 a.m. Sept. 7.

Meeting notices have been sent to about 300 unions and individuals who own shares in the co-operative.

The present building contains 12 offices and three halls, but Secretary A. W. Toome says the meeting will consider whether space in nearby buildings should be leased for trade union offices.

Rev. C. Leighton Straight, assistant minister of First United Church, will attend a national conference aimed at revitalizing youth programs in Canada's protestant churches at Geneva Park, Ont., Aug. 26 to 30.

Agent of Confidential Accused of Blackmail

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Charge where he was working in 1953 two years had been European of "blackmail" was made yesterday at the criminal trial subject of a story published in the March 1957 issue of Confidential and Whisper. The story and sued the magazine.

Producer-director Paul Gregory testified that a woman offered to suppress publication of a story about a film industry party if he would give her $10,000.

Gregory identified the woman as Mrs. Marjorie Meade, niece of Confidential publisher Robert Harrison, and a West Coast agent for Confidential. Mrs. Meade and her husband, Fred, are co-defendants with the two magazines at the trial.

LAUGHTON NAMED

The party allegedly was attended by Robert Mitchum, Charles Laughton and Elsa Lanchester. Gregory said the woman told him the article would injure him and his associates. He said he replied that he would not be a party to anything involving "character assassination and blackmail."

Mrs. Meade testified later that she never had seen Gregory or talked to him.

The defence opened its case by putting James Craig, 27, a former theatre manager on the stand.

Craig testified that he had witnessed a "cuddling" incident between actress Maureen O'Hara and a man in a movie theatre

Limit of 30 In Classes 'Impossible'

Demand by the B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation that all classes be limited to a maximum of 30 pupils for each teacher is "impossible to implement at this time," Education Minister Leslie Peterson said yesterday.

He said B.C. was so short of teachers that it was now certain that some schools would not be able to reopen next month due to lack of staff.

The demand by the federation was one of many made to the provincial cabinet by a delegation yesterday. In most cases their requests were rejected.

Mr. Peterson said Vancouver

Island and lower mainland schools will not feel the pinch so much as those schools in out-of-the-way places in the interior and in northern B.C.

Although an accurate picture cannot be ascertained until the schools open on Sept. 4, it appears that there will be about 200 fewer teachers available than the minimum requirement.

The minister said that in those places where a school is forced to shut down the pupils will receive their lessons by correspondence.

Teachers who have retired are being asked to come back into service to help ease the situation.

Senate Hope

President Patching Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower turned to the Senate Friday for a repair job on his foreign aid bill, which was stalled by an $800,000,000 cut made in the House of Representatives Thursday night.

He spent an hour with Senator William Knowland of California, the Senate's Republican leader, going over plans for getting some of the money back into the bill.

Afterward Knowland said he doubts whether the Senate will be able to restore the entire $800,000,000, but that he and the president hope to get back "a substantial part of the reductions made by the House."

In the Senate, Senator H. Alexander Smith, (Rep., N.J.) said the House has disregarded the advice of Eisenhower, "one of the greatest military leaders of all time."

Stuffed in Trunk

Cop Near At Hand, Two Saved

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP)—A motorcycle cop who saw a hand waving from the trunk of a car yesterday rescued a young couple, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wagner, 18 and 21, from kidnapping and robbery.

Officers identified the kidnapper as James Richard Essen, an escaped convict. He was picked up by the couple as a hitchhiker.

They said that about 64 miles west of St. Louis the hood of the car blew open and when Wagner got out to close it, Essen hit him on the head, then put both Wagner and his wife in the trunk.

The car first was stopped by the officer in a routine check. Wagner, hearing the siren, tried to open the trunk with a tire tool and got the officer's attention with his outstretched hand.

LIMIT IMPOSSIBLE

The Parent-Teacher Federation delegation, which said it was representing 53,000 residents of B.C., asked that the Public Schools Act be amended to provide a maximum of 30 pupils for each teacher.

"That's impossible to implement at this time," Education Minister Peterson told the delegation, pointing out the current teacher shortage.

Newspapers and magazines were attacked by the delegation for printing articles on education which were "inaccurate and which publicize the biased opinion of their authors." They asked that a policy be set whereby the department of education could issue press statements outlining the educational issues.

FREE TRANSPORT

Another point sought was that the present policy of not allowing pupils living within three miles to have free transportation should be modified where school boards can produce evidence that special road or health hazards exist.

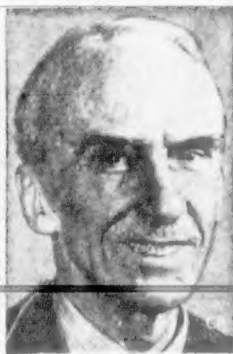

Mr. Peterson stated that the government was now paying 86 per cent of free transportation costs which is probably the largest in the English-speaking world.

A move by the federation to halt the present emergency teacher training program allowing teachers to go out to schools after one year of training was rejected by the government.

Mr. Peterson said that B.C. had the most highly qualified teaching force in Canada and that teachers here still required to train for two years before they were certified.

1,317,626 Dirty Rats Swarm in Vancouver

VANCOUVER—There are two rats to every person in Vancouver and the situation may get out of hand, the president of a pest control firm says. Population of Greater Vancouver in 1956 was 658,813.

James Anderson made the charge after Peter Frewin, 8, was bitten by a rat he thought dead on English Bay beach. Earlier in the week, a rat sprang at a beach attendant who tried to corner him.

"There's a false impression of the cleanliness of Vancouver," said Mr. Anderson. "The city health department is not telling the people of the dangers they're facing through these disease-carrying rats."

The rat which bit Peter Frewin was killed and is being examined for rabies. Peter was given anti-biotic injections.

Huge Carryover Shades New Crop

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada entered the new crop year Aug. 1 with a huge wheat surplus unequalled in its history, clogging markets and farms and threatening to swell into one of the biggest political issues the country has seen in years.

With actual production apparently much higher than it had estimated in the last few years, the bureau of statistics Friday placed the July 31 carryover from the last crop year at a record 722,967,000 bushels roughly equivalent to about two average crops.

To this would be added the fall harvest which, even if only average, would give grain market men one of the greatest disposal problems they have ever faced.

The estimated carryover is 133,393,000 bushels higher than the carryover a year ago and about 420,000,000 bushels greater than the previous record of 1934. It is about 30 times the 30-year low of 24,500,000 carried in 1938.

As Dreary as the Weather

THE disarmament talks in London, dragging along for months, are now said to have hit another snag. As fast as one point seems to have been resolved another disturbing one crops up. Actually nothing has been accomplished all summer long but a few pious acceptances of principle. Nobody has budged an inch where budging meant losing an advantage. It has all been as dreary as this year's B.C. weather.

The Soviet delegate's latest edict is that there can be no headway made, either in whole or in part, without considering the matter of military bases on foreign territory. What he means is that the NATO groups should take their forces out of Europe and from the global bases erected for the defence of the free world. After that presumably it wouldn't be difficult to come to some kind of agreement on armaments; the Soviet Union would be in a pleasant state of mind.

They would have every reason to be. Once British, Canadian and United States forces left Europe they would be oceans away, and Russia left in a landward position to walk over Europe if it desired. It is not only NATO that has bases on foreign territory, however; the Communist bloc is filled with Russian forces. Rumania, Poland, Latvia and the other Soviet satellites are as foreign territory. To Russian troops as France and West Germany are to British, Canadian or American troops. Of necessity the circling NATO bases elsewhere are on the perimeter of the Soviet sphere, but within the vast expanse of Russia itself are numerous bases probably as formidable. It is not territory but intent that is the criterion.

The Soviet Union can claim of course, and does, that the Communist world is one and so there is no question of "foreign" bases. This is so transparent a fiction, however, even Moscow must know it merely as a talking point. That in essence is what the disarmament conference has turned out to be, a debate without reality. It might easily go on until this time next summer, and without the hope that British Columbians have for a betterment of their weather by then.

There When Needed

A MAN and his wife, both in their fifties, were rescued from the waters of Howe Sound the other day by a passing tugboat. They were reported to have been in the water for three hours after their small boat had capsized. Such incidents are, unfortunately, paid little attention by the boating public because they happen so often; but there is an aspect of this one which ought to make an impression.

When picked up after their long ordeal the woman was wearing a lifejacket and her husband was keeping himself afloat by clinging to a buoyant cushion. There can be little doubt that without this help the two would have perished long before assistance arrived. The moral of the story is that every boat, large or small, should be equipped with a lifejacket or other approved means of keeping afloat for every person on board. That not only is common sense but is required by federal regulations.

It is astonishing how many people pay no attention to this fundamental safety rule. Along these shores, and especially at this time of year when the fishing is good, hundreds of people go out every day in open boats far from shore, venturing into strong currents and risking a sudden change in weather. It would probably be a safe guess that not one boat in five—probably 10—has anything resembling a lifejacket. When there is flotation equipment on board, it is rarely if ever worn. Even experienced boat-handlers seem to detest wearing life-jackets, mostly because they are bulky but also, one suspects, in the belief that lifejackets make them look silly and timid.

Except in very small, easily tipped boats it usually isn't necessary to wear flotation devices except in really bad weather, but it's asking for trouble not to have them aboard. They may never be needed, but the experience of the Vancouver couple demonstrates how important they can be.

The Funnel Badge

AS conspicuous almost as the White Ensign that flies from the stern is the red maple leaf on a Canadian warship's funnel. It is known now the world over, bespeaking in foreign ports a ship of the RCN. Yet this badge of identity was not officially inspired; it grew as it were like Topsy, from the whims of able seamen. Usage brought it formal sanction in September, 1944, but long before that a green maple leaf had caught fancy throughout the Canadian Navy.

The RCN magazine Crownstern tells the story. It began perhaps off the coast of Africa in 1918 when a sailor aboard a Canadian minesweeper painted a green and black maple leaf on the funnel. The idea was reborn during the last war when for a time imagination ran riot as crews sought means of distinguishing their ships from those of other Commonwealth navies. Badges and designs of all kinds emblazoned gun shields and funnels. Gradually a green maple leaf on the funnel won general favor and by the time the war ended the custom had been adopted by the entire Canadian navy. After the war, for the sake of contrast, the color was changed from green to red and so it remains.

It can be said therefore that the RCN's badge of national identity is an expression of seamen's will, with a laudable desire that among so many warships flying the unifying and historic White Ensign there should be some other symbol that would proclaim a Canadian ship. The symbol is now taken for granted, and it reflects the rightful pride that a member of the RCN should have in his service. It was born unofficially in days that made its adoption a badge of honor.

Fight for Presidency

By DONAL P. O'HIGGINS
British United Press Staff Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — Canada was expected to play a key role in the feverish pre-balloting manoeuvres leading to the election of a successor to general assembly president Prince Wan Wathayakon of Thailand, informed sources said today.

Interest in the outcome of the contest was mounting in the plush lobbies of the United Nations. What had appeared an easy victory for Sir Leslie Munro of New Zealand was rapidly shaping up into a hotly contested fight with the emergence of the versatile Lebanese Foreign Minister Charles Malik as an active candidate for the post.

Traditionally, the presidency of the general assembly has been regarded as a high prestige job in the world organization.

Commonwealth sources expressed confidence in the ultimate election of the New Zealand ambassador but they conceded quite frankly that the voting was likely to be much closer than previously anticipated.

One significant factor in the current line-up was the probability of a split in Commonwealth ranks with at least a few members favoring the Lebanese nominee.

The balloting will be one of the first items on the agenda when the assembly meets next month.

India, a perennial maverick in Commonwealth relations, has steadily refused to commit itself in favor of New Zealand, a fellow member of the British group. In fact it was considered not unlikely that she would throw her weight behind Malik, according to informed sources.

The United States nearly found itself in a spot over the issue. It was faced with the dilemma of being one hundred per cent in favor of both nominees.

On the one hand was its close ties with the Commonwealth and on the other the fact that the Lebanon has been an outspoken pro-Western anti-Communist nation in a vital area of the world.

However, U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles had written New Zealand's External Affairs Minister T. L. Macdonald supporting Munro for the post before Malik's entrance into the field, according to well informed sources.

The state department has not yet made public this commitment.

Latin American states have been exhaustively canvassed by the Lebanese, and at least several delegations were reported wavering in favor of Malik because of the large Lebanese colonies in their countries.

Munro was expected to garner support from some of the Commonwealth nations in Asia and Africa. These were believed to include Pakistan, Ceylon, Ghana and Malaya.

Although the United Kingdom has made no public statement yet, it was expected to jump into the fray on behalf of New Zealand and rally as many doubtful votes as possible.

But a pivotal point in the campaign, according to well informed sources, could be Canada's activity in behalf of the New Zealand candidate.

Canada, which enjoys a prestige equalled by few other countries in the world organization, was in a better position than the United Kingdom to influence non-commitment members, informed sources believed.

The Canadian delegation was making no statement on the issue here, but if the going really got rough for Munro they were expected to throw their powerful influence behind him.

Steel Making

Gerald Waring

By FRANK KELLEY

FROM time to time in the past we read and heard of possible benefits accruing to the B.C. economy should the federal government implement promises and undertake a geological study of Vancouver Island's rock structure in all parts and issue a sheet that would enable prospectors and citizens generally interested in metal development to get an intelligent grasp of what they might expect in certain rock formations and along certain contacts possessing an apparent affinity for various metals, as well as indicating what the extent of a mineralized zone could be through practical exploration, based on the geologic knowledge displayed on the published sheet.

Such a sheet would be of the greatest benefit to any group of industrialists planning to establish a steel-milling plant anywhere on this coast, even if there are ocular evidences of substantial tonnages of iron ore which are known to exist in a number of places on Vancouver Island that might present fairly good indications there might be enough of the metal to supply a steel mill over a long period of time. Such an operation a Japanese group of industrialists premeditates and is about to investigate with the object of producing steel supplies over a long future. For some years now approximately 500,000 tons have been exported annually from this island to Japan, an amount which, while substantial, would have to be topped annually to some millions of tons every 12 months to make the venture worth while.

There is a lot of iron ore on display in a number of localities on Vancouver Island and undoubtedly more in mainland areas. It can be seen with the naked eye, indicating the presence of large deposits. One of those locations is near Nimpkish Lake, another on the Gordon River, which flows into Port Renfrew Harbor; while a lot of ore has been shipped to Japan from the Campbell River area deposits. The Gordon River property was owned by an Old Country syndicate, represented here by a man named Newton 60 years ago, when great things were predicted for a steel industry.

Claims were recorded at several other locations on the island, as well as a number here and there on the mainland coast. It has been stated. So there should be a lot of information available for the survey the interested Japanese propose to make before proceeding with the venture, which should be encouraged, irrespective of what Canadian industrialists might be expected to promote in time, something that has been mooted occasionally since Victorians had an idea of mining and steel smelting ore found in the Campbell River area during the 1890s.

At that, Japanese planning to establish a steel mill on the B.C. coast seems a bit strange considering that some 20 years ago it was widely advertised there were millions of tons of commercially available ores in Manchuria. In fact, when it was noted about that B.C. ore needed a fluxing metal to make a go of the proposed smelter 60 years ago, agents of sailing ships sought to assist by offering to supply quantities of hematite for little or nothing. At one time most sailing ships arrived here in ballast from the Orient. The ballast consisted of easy smelting iron ores, generally dumped in Royal Roads, a favorite anchorage while waiting for a charter. The ore, plentiful enough on the North China Coast in those years, made ideal ballast for the long voyage. I remember Captain Bucknam, old-time pilot, talking about its advantages.

"The drifting of the boat caused the anchor to rise"

Canadian Notebook

By RICHARD L. THOMAS

ONE of the most revealing aspects of Canadian life is the attitude of the average person to neighbors in the United States. At first, of course, the Briton abroad is not a little surprised that American influence—personal, not financial—is not greater than it is. One has always assumed that the impact of American broadcasting, television and publications would have been bigger than seems to be the case.

Is there a studied determination to repel American influence? The question is asked because people do look at American newspapers, magazines and television. It is the result which is unexpected.

There is a pattern of criticism in Britain which blames American movies and television films for most of the juvenile delinquency. It seems that the influence is more potent at 7,000 miles from here than it is from 20 miles.

The inference of course is that Britain is complacent and Canada is not. Canada is conscious of the risk and either deliberately or more likely subconsciously guards against it. In other words they look and read but do not absorb. Alternatively they are near enough to know a few things which the average Briton does not.

It would, however, be a fair assessment to suggest that young people in Canada although sometimes obviously affected are not really influenced by American proximity. Possibly the reality creates the barrier—and the barrier is possibly more obvious to the outsider than the native.

The Canadian has a resentment of the American dollar—but he takes it less 6 per cent. The American has a resentment of the Canadian dollar and definitely refuses to take it even at par, which would mean a 6 per cent gain. The Canadian will even on occasions accept it at parity on the grounds that it helps the tourist trade, forgetting that it is a dubious business to favor the tourist when you have to live with the resident.

The Canadian attitude reflects an unusual situation. The attainment of financial superiority has helped the defensive attitude—but it is an interesting surmise whether the Canadian really appreciates what he is being defensive about. There is nothing simple about it. It is not, for example, the old monarch-republic argument in new form. It is not an expression of insular nationalism, for the Canadian must be the least nationally minded of all dominion citizens.

One suspects, at least farther east, that the two Canadas have something to do with it, that there are really two nations—like two families sharing the same house. Any profound expression of nationalism in these circumstances might very easily backfire. Maybe this is at the back of the diminished role of Canadian nationalism allied with a determination that the United States shall not be allowed to complicate matters, always assuming that it was willing—hence the rather passive nationalism which resents any other nation adding a spoke to the wheel.

This visitor for one would like to see a stronger Canadian nationalism—but before that it is likely it is necessary to understand where Canada is going, and the foundations on which it is to be built. Is it to be a nationalism of culture and ideals, or business and expediency? To know the answer one must know what it is that makes a nation.

Most of the ingredients of course are intangible. For that reason Canada cannot create her destiny. She has to wait for it to come to her, and by waiting and refusing to be unduly influenced by a powerful neighbor is perhaps the major indication of preparation for her role.

What emerges so far is that Canada is obviously bridging the gap between the old world and the new. Her ties with the old world are sufficiently strong to be vital—so too are her neighborly relations with the United States. It is to be hoped that the two pressures of common sense and an abundance of common sense are already fashioning the stuff of a greater Canadian nationhood. It may well be the shedding of balance and reason in a sadly troubled world.

With the Classics

I grant indeed that fields and flocks have charms
For him that grazes or for him that farms;
But when amid such pleasing scenes I trace
The poor laborious natives of the place,
And see the mid-day sun, with fervid rays,
On their bare heads and dewy temples play;
While some, with feeble heads and fainter hearts,
Deplore their fortunes, yet sustain their part;
Then shall I dare these real ills to hide
In tinsel trappings of poetic pride?

Man, the Exterminator

By GREGORY CLARK

IT did not take the atomic or hydrogen bomb to exterminate the passenger pigeon, the great auk, the Labrador duck, the countless millions of blon that occupied our prairies, the ivory billed woodpecker and a number of other fellow-inhabitants of this green and pleasant continent. Whooping cranes, the surviving 24 of which are now tragically trailing the very last of their once-abundant passages to and from the Texas sanctuary while a whole world watches in conscience-stricken impotence, were not wiped out by atomic radiation or fall-out.

We think of extermination now in terms of the newest devices of ingenious man. But extermination is old stuff. Man, that heaven-born, industrious, good, kindly, eager creature, has been exterminating since the dawn of recorded history. He has exterminated everything that he could not tame, use, eat, enslave or skin.

Should I say man? Perhaps we should say European man. For the Indians who roved the vast grasslands of the central plains of America never dreamed of mass-slaughtering the buffalo. They conceived those gigantic herds to be the Great Spirit's plan to afford a never-ending supply of food and shelter, and they followed the slow herds from year to year, taking only a tiny fringe for their needs in beef, robes, teepee skins, sinews and horns for implements.

Then the European man arrived and exterminated the herds, not with atom bombs but with rifles, to market the hides at a dollar apiece and leave the plains red and stinking with the corpses. A good hunter with his skinning crews would kill 200 a day. They killed millions in a year.

The demand for feather beds in the middle of the last century sent shiploads of clubbers, like our present sealing expeditions, from the New England ports to slaughter millions of nesting ducks on the Atlantic coast, for a handful of feathers each. The earth and the fullness thereof was not God's or the Great Spirit's but nippy little commercial man's, out for a dime or a buck.

Counting all the prehistoric monsters like the dinosaur and the giant winged serpents, counting the sabre-toothed tiger and the beasts of mythology, the werewolf, the Kraken and Grendel, no creature has been so prosperous as man.

He has almost got the earth where he wants it.

Woolly Thinking

Your correspondent E. P. Creech also makes some very surprising statements.

He writes Reeve Ash gave no indication when he was elected that he favored amalgamation and that it would have been proper for him to resign because of this. Here again is another form of "woolly" thinking. If we follow this out to its logical conclusion it would introduce anything new during his two-year term of office because he did not state so when he was elected. It is my mind is strictly for the "birds." Furthermore, while Reeve Ash personally favors amalgamation all he has suggested is a proper investigation into the whole subject to find out the answers, a perfectly legitimate and sensible action which the members of council oppose.

Insofar as prefabricated steel buildings are concerned, the Reeve is on sound ground. He has stated temporary buildings can be constructed for less than half the cost of the proposed addition ($225,000). There has been nothing misleading in the Reeve's statements. I believe this addition has been rushed into simply to stop any investigation into amalgamation.

As to obstructionist methods E. P. Creech has certainly not followed closely the obstructionist methods employed by the so-called "old guard." The Reeve was elected on a policy of putting some business methods into Saanich affairs and has been constantly "bucked." Perhaps E. P. Creech will suggest that the councillors resign too.

By What Authority?

I would like to ask the Saanich council: did they have the legal authority, and in accordance with the Municipal Act, to spend $10,000 on architects' drawings for the proposed $250,000 addition and alterations to an already worn-out frame administration building, which expenditure had not yet been authorized by the people in accordance with the law?

Even the contractors approached have refused to tender on the undertaking until the will of the people is determined. The total cost is a matter of conjecture; expenditure could reach very much more than the quarter-million.

This expenditure (which must be paid in any case) was not necessary and is just another example of muddled thinking and apparent lack of experience, foresight and common sense which has plagued Saanich with the short-sighted, penny-pinching, lame-dog type of administration it has suffered from for so many years.

Why has the overwhelming expression of the people's opinion for a study of the joint hall question (made December last) been so entirely ignored?

Be sure you vote Saturday next and, unless you want a lot more of your money spent unwisely, vote "No!"

Horse-and-Buggy Saanich

A new element enters the pattern of Saanich affairs. Certain individuals are developing illusions of grandeur. They would be rudely shattered if they were appropriately conscious of the fact that rapid development of metropolitan proportions also involves rapid development of major problems, including major financing plans, adjustment of tax structure, and immediate comprehensive planning for public works by men with the necessary background, capabilities and foresight.

The tempo of modernization in public works and services needs to be speeded up. A vast network of roads, put down with a bare minimum of base rock and asphalt surfacing to permit two buggies per day to pass with one wheel on the paving, the other on the shoulder or in the ditch, is insufficient for present population, traffic density, and heavy-duty vehicles in use today.

Whether they like it or not, an accelerated program of sewer installation will be forced upon them.

This writer lived in Saanich 10 years. Worked on the public works department several years, is familiar with its entire territory, terrain, and topography. Has worked in places where engineering, office staffs, and general public wouldn't get within a block of, if they could help it. There are places where, because of the lay of the land, all the houses on a street have sewage effluent working through, accumulating, in some cases lying motionless in long-term putrefaction, because it cannot go anywhere else. Have worked in the mud and water of Colquitz Creek, among the piles, under the wharves of the inner harbor and other places, and if any citizen wants to take a pail of mud from Colquitz Creek, Portage Inlet, the Gorge, or other places around Greater Victoria shores, I guarantee they will not leave it under their kitchen table 24 hours.

Travesty on Tradition

What an indignity—that the Houses of Parliament should be thrown open for the use of an international convention. Most people know the conditions connected with, and surrounding, such a robust affair, no matter what nature or purpose.

It is tacitly understood that the Houses of Parliament have been—and are—dedicated to the nation's business, supported and maintained by the taxpayers of Canada. The dignity and honor of serving in said Houses is a privilege granted by the people—or electorate.

'It's Your Greatest Gift'

Keep Yourself Pure
Graham Urges Youth

NEW YORK (UP)—Evangelist Billy Graham last night urged young people to preserve their "purity" and said "I never kissed my wife until I put the ring on her finger."

Graham told some 15,500 persons at Madison Square Garden that getting into marriage as a preparation for marriage. But he warned his predominantly youthful audience that "the other kind of getting is sin."

PART OF GOD'S PLAN

He said, "the greatest gift you can give the person you are going to marry is your purity." He added that "there is nothing wrong with sex, it's part of God's plan to be attracted to the opposite sex."

The evangelist advised girls not to allow themselves to be "pawed over and smudged by everyone who comes along." He advised as a substitute for petting, hiking, games, athletic activity and church. "My wife said that in my first year of courtship church was the only place I took her."

REAL PUPPY LOVE

Graham told about his youth when he fell in love. "Some people called it puppy love, but it was actually real puppy love. When she said she didn't love me, I didn't know whether to hang myself, slash my wrists or jump into the river," he said.

Graham said he later dreamed that God had someone picked out for him and this turned out to be his present wife. "I was glad I waited and listened to God's word."

CAREFUL DATING

Christian youngsters were advised not to make a habit of dating non-Christians. "Get a young man or woman who has yielded to Christ," he suggested, "or wait until one comes along."

He warned that marriage involving a Christian and a non-Christian sometimes founders. He cited a case in which a non-Christian wife left her Christian husband after two years of marriage because his Christianity got on her nerves.

Last night's near-capacity audience brought the total since the start of the crusade last May to 1,566,300. "Decisions for

Open Skies Bid

LONDON (UP)—Soviet disarmament envoy Valerian A. Zorin last night publicly attacked the new American sponsored open skies aerial inspection program as merely a means of exposing Soviet armed forces to Western view. Hope for the program founded.

Zorin, a deputy foreign minister, hinted in an interview with a Communist Chinese newspaper that Russia would reject the plan presented.

Zorin raised the old Soviet argument that "the Western powers are trying to substitute control for the whole problem of disarmament."

Zorin has not replied formally to the proposal in the conference sessions, now in recess until Tuesday. But his interview with the Peiping People's Daily left little hope that the Soviets would accept the proposal.

Vaccine
For Flu
For Free

TORONTO (CP)—An assistant director of Connaught Medical Laboratories said Friday Asiatic flu vaccine will be distributed free by the federal and provincial governments if the disease breaks out.

Dr. M. H. Brown said essential services would be given priority in receiving the vaccine. Hospital and medical workers and those in transport and communications would top the list, he said.

Dr. Brown said production and distribution arrangements would be similar to those used when Connaught produced Salk vaccine against polio was distributed by the two levels of government.

Short Supply

In Victoria, Health Minister Eric Martin said distribution in B.C. of the vaccine will be handled by the health branch of the government.

He said he understood the vaccine was in very short supply and that "B.C. will get only about 20,000 doses."

He said he did not know whether charges would be made. Mr. Martin said there doesn't appear to be any great threat of a flu outbreak in B.C., and suggested the danger will be further lessened "if people take care of themselves."

Garden Notes

I Say Ernie's Wrong

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

My neighbor Ernie is a stubborn cuss, and we argue constantly over practically every aspect of gardening. The other day, sitting in a booth at the Greasy Spoon over a cup of coffee, we got into a ding-dong battle over the proper culture of corn. Voices rose and the table began to shake.

The point in question was whether or not you should twist off the suckers or "tillers" which spring up from the base of a corn plant.

Ernie claims you can't grow decent corn at all unless the suckers are removed.

I haven't suckered my corn in years, and I'll back my ears of old-fashioned Golden Bantam against anybody's—well, most years, anyhow.

I can see that on poor, infertile soil, where nutrients were in short supply, the suckers might rob the maincrop ears to the point where they were undersized and late in swelling, though nobody but a congenital idiot would ever try to grow corn in such soil.

Given good soil to start with, plus a regular sprinkling of fertilizer, all through the growing season, there will be plenty of food for both the suckers AND the maincrop ears.

It seems to me, too, that the foliage on the suckers would actually help convert that fertilizer into luscious kernels on the cobs.

Not only that, but the removal of the suckers must be something of a shock to the plant, and unless the surgical operation is performed while the tillers are still tiny, it must give the plant a decided setback.

Corn is notoriously touchy over having its roots disturbed, and I have known a crop to be nearly ruined through rough handling and careless hoeing, and I don't think it is possible to twist off a big sucker without some root disturbance.

Some years, when we have been blessed with a long, warm, open fall, I have taken a second crop of smallish ears from the suckers, long after the maincrop cobs were finished. They weren't much for looks, but they made good eating.

Speaking of corn suckers brings to mind the question of that secondary spike of flowers which forms on gladiolus, and I get a lot of letters of the year asking whether or not they should be removed.

The answer depends on how you use your gladiolus. Professional growers and flower show exhibitors always remove the secondary spike, taking it off as soon as it is spotted, for you can't get a clean, long-stemmed spike of bloom unless this is done.

But if you break up your main spike into bits and pieces for artistic flower arrangements, you don't need a long stem.

The main stem may be cut just above where the secondary spike emerges, leaving the secondary to provide a later crop of short-stemmed blooms.

Movie Review

Cole Emotes in Minor Key

By Bruce Lowther

Nat "King" Cole makes a fairly impressive debut as an actor in "China Gate," which opened at the Capitol Theatre yesterday, but there isn't much else to say of this improbable movie.

Cole is one of a small group of French Foreign Legionnaires embroiled with the Communists in the Indo-Chinese war of 1954. The job of this polyglot group is to destroy the Red ammunition dump on the border of Indo-China and Communist China.

Gene Barry is the American dynamiter and Angie Dickinson his estranged half-Chinese wife who is the only person who can lead them to the dump. These two had a baby a few years back but it turned out to be Chinese in appearance, and Barry doesn't like it, at least until he has to.

Singer Cole is good in that he underplays his role, coming up with a nice, easy style. But other acting jobs are poor, the movie follows the nauseous trend of too much blood and violence, the plot is simply unbelievable, and the group of Legionnaires is just like those soldiers of Second World War movies—except there's nobody from Brooklyn.

Diary from Abroad

Sloppy Joe—Sloppy Greta

By Sheila Graham

DATELINE EUROPE

(NANA)—The Sporting Club in Monte Carlo will never be the same since Greta Garbo broke precedent and dined in a voluminous black sloppy Joe sweater over shapeless pants. Now really! If Garbo actually wants to be anonymous as she always claims, how can you hide in such strange garments?

Rita Hayworth's daughter, Yashin, is a chip off the old romantic block. The male whose heart beats faster for her is 13-year-old Michael Ray.

who was so good in "The Brave One."

Ava Gardner's "Bhowani Junction" picture with Stewart Granger, is currently drawing crowds in Rome, with the title "The Half Breed."

The life of Mussolini's "friend" Clara Petacci, has been offered to Metro by her family—on condition that Clara will be played by her sister Miriam. The clause may kill the contract. The family recently successfully sued the state for the personal papers of Signorina Petacci, who died with her once powerful protector.

You never know what fate may bring. The pretty cousin of the lady in India linked with Roberto Rossellini has been getting movie offers from Italian producers.

Romans voted David Niven and Esther Williams the most co-operative Hollywood stars. Remember the time when Hollywood voted Esther the least co-operative?

I'm told that David Seznick has used up the $4,000,000 allotted him by 20th-Century for "A Farewell To Arms." The Jennifer Jones-Rock Hudson epic is still shooting.

Lex Barker, former Tarzan, is playing his newest picture in London in a wheel chair—"to prove I have something else to offer apart from a good figure." To make sure no one sees it, Lex is wrapped from hip to toe in a plaster cast.

The Bob Hopes are in Venice. When 17-year-old son Tony arrived from the States he presented Bob with an empty sugar sack. For the man who has everything, here's something to put it in.

And British actress Ann Todd on marriage—"It's a glorious institution, but I have no plans to marry again." Ann who recently divorced film director David Lean, is now in New York rehearsing for her first Broadway play.

Prince Rainier and Grace Kelly are really getting away from the fuss and feathers in Switzerland, with the Prince actually spotted hanging up his drip-and-dry laundry.

They refer to Jayne Mansfield's picture with Dan Dailey in England as "The Wayward Bus"—speaking anatomically of course.

That man in the barber's chair is in again. When the neighbor burst into the shop and yelled, "Hey, Schultz, your house is on fire!" he yanked off the hot towel, dashed out of the shop and was halfway down the street before he asked himself: "What am I running for? My name ain't Schultz!"

South had no reason to run out of two clubs to see what the opponents did; then decide whether to go on or to double them. When he took himself out, he gave North the idea that the opening bid was on a short club suit. The result was that North passed the two-spade bid. Perhaps he shouldn't have, more especially as South could have made three clubs.

The fact remains that he did.

The favorable position of the trumps would have made it possible for South to make two spades, except that East and West followed up West's fine opening lead with some inspired defence. Declarer won the first club in dummy and led the nine of spades. Had East ducked, or covered with the ten-spot, South would have made his contract. But he made the remarkable play of the king of spades, forcing declarer's ace.

A low spade toward dummy's eight-spot would have been declarer's best play. Instead, he led a second club to put the lead in dummy and play the eight of spades through. East covered with the ten. South played the jack, and West was in with the queen. A third club permitted East to score his four of spades. Next East led the jack of hearts and the defenders collected three heart tricks. West remained with the 6-5 of spades, sure trick behind South's 7-3.

Suppose South had passed the double of two clubs. West must bid two spades which would have fared very badly against a tight defence. Nor would three diamonds have done any better.

However, South's biggest bidding error was his failure to bid one no-trump initially. It is always wise to open when your hand meets the requirements; with a part score, it is doubly desirable to do so, thereby putting partner into the driver's seat and also making it difficult for the opponents to compete.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Mrs. Janet R. Gray, sought in connection with a $100,000 shortage from a Decatur, Ga., clinic, was identified by the FBI Friday as Margaret Lydia Burton, a British subject with a police record dating back 18 years.

TV TALK

By Bruce Lowther

No matter how much CBC denies it, this writer feels that economy is one of the reasons why Denny Vaughan, Jackie Rae and Pick the Stars have been cancelled, and Wayne and Shuster, Harris Beat and Showtime are likely to go under the axe.

Graphic was cancelled, however, mainly because it was no good. New shows are cheaper, Tugboat Annie and Last of the Mohicans are films, Front Page Chat-mer panel show and the only expensive effort is a continuation into the winter of the "Summer-time" musical affair.

By the way, Denny Vaughan has charged that before last season, CBC asked him to sign a contract that he had to do everything the network demanded. He refused, he said, he still had to take orders and "most of the other performers were frightened into signing the agreement."

Vaughan also said his weekly budget was $10,000 to $15,000, of which $3,000 went to dance numbers he didn't want. Why? The producers' wife, Glenna Jones, a dancer, was featured to the extent that singer Joan Fairfax had her time cut down.

A poor show, indeed.

Happiest news of the summer: NRC has announced that Nat "King" Cole will have a regular show at 7:30 each Tuesday. New time is effective Sept. 24. Cole's summer effort is undoubtedly the best regular program on any channel.

TV BITS: An unusual show on channel 2 this afternoon: a yachting regatta at Vancouver. CBC may have dropped its spectacular Christmas festival but it will have several 90-minute shows including "Four Gypsies" (Britten), "The Swan" (a major ballet and Milona's "Carnival").

Looks like Walter Winchell has made it on TV. His dramatic series, which starts in the fall already has been extended from 26 to 39 weeks at $7,500 a week to WW. Latest about Phila Bergen is that she won't get the alternate spot with Dean Martin because her CBS contract goes to Dec. 31. Cole Porter will write the music (for $75,000) for the CBS special "Aladdin" Feb. 21. Howard Morris will not be with Sid Caesar next season, but Carl Reiner will return. Mike Wallace's show has been extended to mid-October but may be cancelled then.

Fire Chief Disobeyed
Order Flouted, Penalty, $50
A fine of $50 was levied against Sidney D. Vantreight, 806 Halliburton, in city police court Thursday for failing to obey an order from the fire marshal.

Fire Chief Frank Briers, assistant fire marshal, testified that on June 12 last, acting on a complaint, he had inspected premises owned by accused at 1721 Cook.

"I found the premises insecure, deteriorated and in an unsafe condition," Chief Briers said. "On June 13 I presented to the accused an order to remove, repair or destroy the structure by June 30."

Chief Briers added that accused applied for an extension of time to July 31, but that when the chief inspected the property a previous job. The premises, he said, had suffered a lot of wilful damage.

Killer Whales Circle Fishers

Two fishermen from Victoria are glad they weren't rowing when they went fishing off Sooke.

Frank Porter, 2338 Heron, and John Blackey, Fair Street, were after salmon in a 15-foot outboard motor canoe. Mr. Blackey had a strike, and was starting to reel in when fishermen in a nearby boat yelled at him to pull in quickly.

As he did so, Mr. Blackey saw a huge fin about five feet from the boat.

The two were surrounded by a school of about 20 killer whales, each weighing about five tons.

Mr. Porter also had a fish on his line, and saw a whale take his salmon, line and sinker, 15 feet from the boat.

The men moved away swiftly.

Largest party in the three years of organized tours from Victoria to the Stratford festival in Ontario, 18 persons, leaves the city today to see two Shakespearean plays and a Benjamin Britten opera.

In addition, CNR officials said yesterday, all of the travellers will take in an optional tour of the Niagara Falls area and some will make extra trips to New York and the Maritimes.

Honey Stocks Poor

Bleak Winter Forecast For Sun-Starved Bees

British Columbia's bees see a bleak winter ahead, according to George V. Wilkinson, secretary of the Vancouver Island branch of the B.C. Honey Producers' Association.

And the cause is the poor weather. Cool nights and light sunlight during the days prevent plants producing nectar.

Hal Banks' Citizenship Bid Backed

MONTREAL (CP)—Four top Canadian labor leaders vouched for Hal C. Banks when he appeared in the court of Canadian citizenship at a continued hearing of his application to become a citizen.

The four are President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress, Frank Hall, Canadian chief of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, President Roger Provost of the Quebec Federation of Labor and President Louis Laberge of the Montreal Trades and Labor Council.

Each testified before Judge Paul Fontaine that Mr. Banks, who described himself as vice-president of the Seafarers' International Union (C.I.O.) and advisor to the S.I.U.'s Canadian branch, is "fit to become a Canadian citizen."

The judge adjourned the hearing begun Aug. 7, one week.

Whaler's Top Prize Caused by Cancer

About 20 Antarctic whaling armadas set out every year and each expedition costs between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 but, on average, there is also $3,000,000 or $4,000,000 profit on the catch, generally valued at between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000.

This was stated by Capt. Eric Revfem, RCN, in a talk to the Victoria Rotary Club Thursday.

He has taken part in several Norwegian expeditions. Most years British, Dutch, Norwegian, Japanese and Russian fleets were in the Antarctic for the opening of the season on Dec. 1.

Whales weighed up to 100 tons and were as long as 100 feet, and the harpoons carried up to 15 pounds of explosive. Capt. Revfem described the highly-skilled job of the whalers, whose task was not dissimilar to submarine-chasers. Most valuable by-product of the whale, but rarely found, was ambergris — highly-prized by perfume manufacturers — and which was caused by cancer on the whale's liver.

The 600 men who comprised the average expedition — of whom 400 worked on the factory ship — often worked for days without sleep during the intensive season which was limited by international authority to a maximum of four months.

Capt. Revfem mentioned an early family association with Vancouver Island when his father came over 55 years ago to help establish the whaling industry which is still carried on at Coal Harbor.

Rose for Queen

ROME (Reuters)—The master of Queen Elizabeth's household has written to Renato Marmiroli, Italian monarchist who challenged Lord Altrincham to a duel, thanking him for the red rose he sent the Queen last week "as an act of homage and reparation to Your Majesty."

The letter from Buckingham Palace said: "The master of the household presents his compliments to Signor Renato Marmiroli and begs to acknowledge receipt of the rose which he has so kindly sent to the Queen at Buckingham Palace."

Marmiroli, a member of the popular monarchist party, said he was "overjoyed" to receive the letter.

Marmiroli sent the rose, which he plucked on Rome's ancient Capitol Hill, Aug. 10 "to symbolize the blood Lord Altrincham should have shed to repair the insult to a gracious Queen."

Education of Public Defence Display Aim

Visual education of the public in the workings of civil defence is the hope of CD officials now making plans for a display at the Bay Street Armoury on not just war.

CD training officer Frank Burrows said such a display would show the public that the work of civil defence is geared for any form of disaster, and not just war.

Simulated casualties would be pulled from make-believe ruins, taken to a treatment centre for first aid, transferred to a casualty clearing unit where a doctor would assign them to hospitals, and then be put aboard waiting ambulances and hurried from the building.

The advanced treatment centre and casualty clearing unit would both be under direction of Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffey, city medical health officer.

Wheat Stocks Grow and Grow

OTTAWA (BUP)—Canadian wheat stocks on July 31 stood at an all-time record of 723,000,000 bushels, the bureau of statistics said Friday.

The figure compared with last year's July 31 carryover into the new crop year of 579.6 million. The previous all-time high was 1954's 618.7 million.

The bureau said that 319.2 million bushels of wheat were still on the farms, on July 31, undelivered to shipping positions, and unpaid for by the Canadian Wheat Board.
